

CPS Reports in 2022 by County

Please use data wisely. Data is great for grant applications and organizational awareness, but when child abuse data is used publicly, research shows it leaves us feeling hopeless, that the problem is too large to solve, and ultimately the solutions and blame is put on child protective services agencies. Primary prevention of child abuse occurs when everyone takes responsibility for prevention and understands it is a collective, community responsibility. When using data, please refer to the “From Data to Action” Checklist for guidance in creating community supporters in your community and state. Link to our checklist here.
